IMPORTANT DISCOVERY.

MR. J. EMANUEL, Surgeon-Dentist, wishes to inform the public and his patients, that he can supply the loss of Palates. After many years experience he has invented an Artificial Palate, made on a new principle, guaranteed to answer every purpose of articulation and comfort to the wearer. A specimen to be seen daily at his residence.

Mr. J. E. continues to supply the loss of Teeth, from one to a whole set, upon the peculiar and successful system of self-adhesion. These artificial Teeth have been found to answer all the purposes of the original Teeth in mastication, articulation, appearance, &c., and to remain perfectly secure in their places by capillary attraction, and the pressure of the atmosphere occasioning a natural adhesion to the gum only, so that the wearer soon becomes unconscious that he uses artificial Teeth. They may also be taken out and replaced by the wearer with the greatest facility. These improvements enable him to supply whole or half sets without the spiral springs which are usually attached to such pieces.

N.B. As some persons are under an apprehension that they must be put to great pain and inconvenience by the removal of Teeth and Stumps, and other painful operations before they can be supplied with artificial teeth, I feel it incumbent on me to remove this error, so far as relates to my system, which requires no removal of Teeth or Stumps, or any pain or inconvenience whatever, any more than if the article in question were an ordinary piece of dress.

ENGLISH INTELLIGENCE.

By the arrival of the Francis, English news to the 28th April had been received at Port Phillip. The following abstract contains circumstances not previously known in Sydney. A shock of an earthquake had been felt in Holland. The wings of Mr. Henson's aerial machine were being made at the Montpelier Gardens. The Great Western steamed 4700 miles in twenty days. The Queen of France was about to hold a bazaar, the proceeds to be devoted to charitable purposes. The remains of His Royal Highness the Duke of Sussex were to be interred on the 4th May, in the Cemetery at Kensall Green; it was to be a state funeral: twenty-five thousand Freemasons, would, it was expected, form part of the procession. Her Majesty was to visit Ireland in August. The Chancellor of the Exchequer had given notice of his intention to open the budget on the 8th May. Her Majesty had presented a donation of £1000 to the funds of the Blue Coat School. Consols closed on the 26th April at 96½ to 96⅝. The only extract which we shall make is the following account of Her Majesty's accouchement:

On Tuesday morning, April 25, at four o'clock, the Queen was safely delivered of a princess. In the room with Her Majesty were his Royal Highness Prince Albert, Dr. Locock, and Mrs. Lilly, the monthly nurse; and in the room adjoining, were the other medical attendants, (Sir James Clark and Dr. Ferguson), and the Lord Steward of Her Majesty's household. This event, though every one has been anxiously expecting it for the last month, at last took place so suddenly that—coupled with the reluctance unnecessarily to alarm the great officers of state and the ministers—most of the official persons whose duty it was to have been present, did not arrive in time. From the 14th up to Monday, the Queen was better in health perhaps than the previous fortnight, with the exception of one evening last week, the alarm that arose from the announcement, by some of our contemporaries of Dr. Locock's being in attendance at the palace night and day, being quite a mistake, and having no other foundation than the fact of a room in the palace having been prepared for the Doctor's reception in case circumstances should render his close attendance necessary. Such, however, was not the case: for though Dr. Locock slept several nights at the palace, previous to the birth of the Prinle of Wales, he did not do so on the present occasion. Her Majesty was taken unwell about half past one o'clock. Dr. Locock, Dr. Ferguson, and Sir James Clark, were immediately sent for, and after their arrival messengers were despatched to the Duchess of Kent, Sir Robert Peel, the great Officers of State, the Home Secretary, the Lord Chancellor, and other great functionaries. Owing, however, to the delay, and to the very short time before the birth took place, being only three hours and a half from the moment the medical men were sent for, all the official personages were too late, with the exception of the Earl of Liverpool, and the Lord Steward of the Household. The rest remained at the Palace until the bulletin was issued, and then took their departure. The only difference in the medical attendance on this occasion from that at the birth of the Prince of Wales was, that the services of Mr. Blagden were dispensed with. The bulletin issued on Wednesday says, that the Queen had passed an excellent night, and on Wednesday evening, Her Majesty and the infant princess were both extremely well.

LATE AFFRAY AT NEW ZEALAND.

By the Thomas Lord, which arrived from Auckland on Saturday, we have received a confirmation of the intelligence respecting the fatal conflict between the natives and the New Zealand Company's servants at Cloudy Bay. At least nineteen white men and nine natives have been killed, and four white men are missing, who it is to be feared have met the same fate. Among the killed are Captain Wakefield, the New Zealand Company's Agent at Nelson, Mr. Thompson, the Local Judge, Mr. Richardson, Crown Prosecutor, Captain England, late H. M. 12th Regiment, Mr. Howard, the Company's Storekeeper, Mr. Patchett, Merchant, and Mr. Cotterell, Surveyor, Messrs. John Brooke, William Clanzay, Thomas Ratcliffe, Wm. Northam, Thomas Pay, Coster, James M'Gregor, William Gardiner, Ely Cropper, Henry Bumforth, Thomas Tyrrell, and Isaac Smith.—Missing, Malen, Chief Constable, Edward Stokes, Thomas Hannam, and John Benton.

So far as we can judge from the statements in the newspapers, and the letter of our Auckland correspondent, which we give below, the conduct of the Company's Agents in refusing to wait for the decision of Mr. Spain, the Land Commissioner, before they took possession of the land in dispute, was exceedingly reprehensible, and the behaviour of Mr. Thompson very rash, to use the mildest term. But before expressing any decided opinion, we should like to see the official account of the transaction, which will of course be published as soon as the necessary enquiries have been made.

There is one gratifying circumstance—inasmuch as it shows that the general feeling of the natives is against the chief Rangiaiata and his followers,—the natives of an adjoining settlement refused to allow them to land after they had committed the outrage; in consequence of which they had retired to an uninhabited point, and were erecting pahs to protect themselves from the attack which they were expecting from the Europeans. This is very important, and relieves us from the fears which we entertained of this transaction being the signal for a general rising of the natives.

The only official document bearing upon the transaction is the following extract from a circular addressed by Mr. A. E. Macdonagh, the Police Magistrate, of Wellington, to the British settlers in Cook's Straits:

No one among you can regret more sincerely than myself this fearful sacrifice of human life, or can feel more deeply the loss which the settlement has thus sustained; but I should fail in my duty did I not declare my conviction, after obtaining evidence from a quarters, that the affray was not the result any premeditated design on the part of the natives; but that, on the contrary, they sought by every means to avert it, and did not fire a shot until five of their party had fallen, including the wife of Rangiaitia, who at the moment bore his own son in her arms. Upon receiving the disastrous intelligence, feeling it to be of the first importance to obtain authentic information of the natives, I immediately put myself in communication with those persons who were in a position to furnish accurate reports on the subject, and I have the satisfaction of informing you, that the natives of Waikanea, at which place Raupero first landed, refused to allow him to remain among them, lest the friendly relations which had previously subsisted between them and the English settlers might be destroyed; and that I have every reason to believe these feelings to be shared by almost all the natives on the coast. No apprehension therefore of any aggression on their part need to be entertained; but if from any circumstance a hostile purpose should be cherished by them, I have made arrangements which will immediately put me in possession of the fact, and enable me to make necessary preparations to resist it. In order to strengthen this friendly feeling, I have published an address to the natives in their own language, and have caused it to be distributed in all parts of the country, which I trust will have that effect, by maintaining a confidence in the justice of the Government, and in the impartial administration of the laws.

We cannot avoid making one remark: it would have been well had Governor Hobson's advice been attended to, and no settlement been formed on the southern island for the next seven years; every settlement formed on the northern island would have added fresh strength to those previously in existence, and it would have been quite time enough to have commenced colonising the southern island, when there were half a million of people on the northern. The natives of the northern island have had missionaries permanently residing among them for upwards of twenty years, while there have been but few missionary visits to the southern island: although we believe that the Wesleyan Missionary Society have recently formed a station in the neighbourhood of Cloudy Bay. Had the settlement of this island; been postponed—and there could be no necessity for colonising the south island when the northern one had not ten thousand inhabitants upon it—the natives would gradually have become more Christianized, and the work of colonization been comparatively easy; but there would not have been so much gambling in town lots, which has always had too much influence with the parties who have had the management of the new-fangled system of colonization,

We give below our Correspondent's usual communication.

Auckland, July 17, 1843.

The harrowing circumstances that have occurred at Cloudy Bay, in Cook's Straits, whereby Captain Arthur Wakefield, and at least eighteen other persons fell a sacrifice, have of course reached you ere this.

This lamentable tragedy took place through the unparalleled folly of Mr. H. A. Thompson, the Chief Police Magistrate of Nelson, whose lunacy, previously to the event in which he fell a victim, was established in the mind of every person to whom he was personally known.

Many months previous, a petition, earnestly praying for his dismissal from an office he was mentally unfitted to fill, was presented we believe to Mr. Shortland, on his visit to Nelson some six months back; but that functionary, not only refused compliance, but actually created him Judge of the County Court, and Protector of the Aborigines. No possible excuse can be invented to excuse the wanton heaping of judicial pluralities on such a man, as many of the settlers at Nelson can boast of mental talent and family, inferior to none of the colonists in any of the settlements. From all we have learnt, the following appears to be the most impartial statement.

The aggressions of the agents of the New Zealand Company, in asserting claims to land on either side of Cook's Straits, which have never been purchased from the natives, have caused much animosity on the part of the latter towards Europeans. The upright and conscientious decisions of Mr. Spain, the Land Commissioner, have restrained in some degree the fierce ebullitions of feeling that have agitated the native lords of the soil. This unpleasant state of things was well known to all persons connected with the Company's affairs, but the excitement was heedlessly regarded. A locality called the Wairou forms a portion of the country lands of the Nelson settlement—a party of surveyors were sent to portion it into allotments—the surveyors built a couple of rush houses on the spot; these were burnt by the natives under the direction of two chiefs named Rauparaha, and his son-in-law Rangihaiata, previously placing in safety the goods of the surveyors. Instead of calmly waiting for a few weeks the result of Mr. Spain's promised investigation, Mr. Thompson, at the instance of Captain Wakefield, issued a warrant for the apprehension of the chiefs, and determined to execute it in person. He was joined by Captains Wakefield and England, and forty-six other persons, principally surveyors. The natives had placed themselves in an advantageous position, near the source of the Wairou River. On Mr. Thompson and party advancing, the former explained the contents of the warrant, through an interpreter. The chiefs refused to surrender, and said they would await the arrival of Mr. Spain. On the warrant being presented, about twenty of the natives arose and presented their muskets. Mr. Thompson, who was exceedingly excited, pointed to his armed men, and ordered the latter to advance across the river, which they did, using a canoe for a bridge, the rivulet being deep in that part. At this moment a general discharge of musketry took place between both parties, when several Europeans fell, others returned to cross the rivulet, but met their own people in the canoe, which caused much confusion. Captain Wakefield called the men around him to make a stand on the brow of a hill close by; the natives were panic-struck at this moment, when the two chiefs raised the warcry, and rapidly advancing, many of the Europeans took to flight. Those who were unarmed and disdained to fly, formed on the hill, and exhibiting a white handkerchief, awaited the coming up of the chiefs, who understood the appeal. At this time Rangihaiata learnt that his wife (daughter of Rauparaha) had been killed by a random ball, he hastily said to the latter "Remember your daughter;" Rauparaha sat still, and by an affirmative gesture gave his consent to the implied wishes of his savage son-in law, who immediately butchered the prisoners by a tomahawk with his own hand. Among the unhappy victims to this brutal savage were Messrs. Wakefield, Thompson, England, (late a Captain, 12th Regiment), Cockerell, and five others. The natives hastily quitted the place, and paddled to a settlement of their countrymen for protection; but the crimes they had become stained with caused such disgust, that a refusal was given, on which the murderers sought another asylum,—vowing vengeance on the tribe who refused to succour them in their distress. They afterwards reached the River Manewatu, a country district of Port Nicholson, where a fort was formed, to await the expected attack of the Europeans.

The above we believe to be a fair statement of this melancholy affair, but the Government Gazette has issued a different version, which has been stigmatized by Dr. Evans, of Port Nicholson, who writes—"I crave permission to enter my solemn protest, on behalf of myself and my fellow-settlers, against those papers in the last Government Gazette, (19th July), relative to the massacre at Wairou, which have inspired me with horror at the infatuation of the authors"—(Protectors of Aborigines). "Their tendency I conscientiously believe to be to bring on a war of extermination between the Europeans and the natives."

To conclude this melancholy affair, the massacre at Cloudy Bay was solely consequent to the reckless conduct of the local Government in passing over a grievous catalogue of native aggressions without punishment, and in having screened the aborigines, when Europeans—insulted, and robbed, and otherwise maltreated, have sought for justice, and the cruel sentences pronounced on the latter, even when roused, to have recourse to self-defence. We have not the remotest doubt but that the fair fame of the two ruthless chiefs will be insisted on by a body yeleped "Protectors of the Aborigines." We do not wholly blame the natives in burning the rush huts, as they were careful in placing in safety the property found in them; but their brutal use of victory cannot surely be defended. When Makatu, the chief who murdered Mrs. Robertson, previously committing another crime of equal turpitude, and, further, murdering her two children, hurling a third into the sea from a steep perpendicular cliff, and firing the house to consume his victims, the Government never interfered in capturing him—he was sought after by two of the townsmen of Kororarika, who delivered him up to the local magistrate. Despite the horrid crimes committed in cold blood by this young chief, (for he was not twenty), the Protector of Aborigines did all that lay in his power to prevent his suffering the penalty of his crimes. In brief, anarchy between the colonists and aborigines, and native war, has resulted from the conduct of the Local Government. A Mr. Gutuner, of Maunganni, lately tried to obtain a warrant from the police magistrate of the Bay of Islands and Auckland, to apprehend a native who was caught robbing, but was unsuccessful in both cases. The magistrate of Auckland excused himself, the aggression not being committed in his district. Outrages must increase, aggressions will continue to be committed—and will be permitted without redress until the incubus of the Protectorate is wholly subverted. The intelligent New Zealanders require no such functionaries. Their sagacity and enlarged mental powers are too well known to fear the much longer continuation in office of such a body of apologists for native misdemeanors. They are perfectly aware that when aggrieved, the police magistrate is their best authority to apply to for redress. We believe, with the exception of Mr. Halswell, of Port Nicholson, not one of the corps has any legal knowledge.

Much squabbling between the purchasers of the land sales and the local government continues to exist. Some of the former have received several perches too much, and have been mulct accordingly; but by far the greater portion have had to console themselves with many perches less than actually purchased—their remonstrances have proved vain.

The detachment of the 96th Regiment have been sent to Port Nicholson, to calm the excited fears of the settlers there; but we believe not the slightest apprehension need be entertained of any fracas with the natives.

Want of capitalists renders the colony in a depressed state; but Byron observes, "when things come to the worst, they sometimes mend." Agriculture is spreading fast; the produce in quality may vie with the best produced in the colonies. The fern lands are easily converted into productive farms, at little expense; though the contrary has been published by some persons who could possess no personal knowledge of the subject; and the climate has been too often justly eulogised for further repetition.

COLONIAL EXPORTS.

An excellent opportunity is afforded at present for making known the quality of our colonial provisions, by sending samples of them to Tahiti. There are there at present English men-of-war, belonging to the East India and the South American squadrons, two French men-of-war, and probably before this an American sloop. Whatever may be the result of the proceedings of the French at Tahiti, there can be no doubt that there will be considerable numbers, both of English and French men-of-war in the Pacific during the next few years, and it is of importance that we should let it be as extensively known as possible that provisions of colonial growth and manufacture can always be had from Sydney. As several vessels are about sailing for Tahiti, we would suggest that the Salting Company should send half a dozen casks of beef to Tahiti, and ask both the English and French captains to express an opinion as to its quality.

LAW INTELLIGENCE.

SUPREME COURT.—Civil Side.

Friday.

Before his Honor Mr. Justice Stephen and a Special Jury.

JURORS FINED.

The following gentlemen were fined £5 each for non-attendance as jurors:—namely, H. K. James, Esq.; J. W. Gosling, Esq.; P. De Mestre, Esq.; J. H. Grose, Esq.; and Donald Larnach, Esq.

SMITH AND ANOTHER V. HOLT.

This was an action of trover, brought by Messrs. Andrew Blower Smith and Robert Thompson, as trustees of the insolvent estate of Samuel Furneaux Mann, against James Holt, of the firm of Cooper and Holt, George-street, to recover the possession of four promissory notes, for the respective sums of £144 19s. 11d., £199 14s. 2d., £863 0s. 9d., and £282, the two former made by the insolvent, and bearing the endorsement of Messrs. Hughes and Hosking; and the two latter being the notes of Messrs. Gore and Co., in favour of the insolvent.

Counsel for the plaintiffs, the Solicitor-General and Mr. Darvall: for the defendant, Messrs. Foster and Windeyer.

It appeared from the evidence adduced on behalf of the plaintiff, that the notes in question were given by the insolvent Mann, to the defendant in this action, in satisfaction of a judgment obtained against him in the Supreme Court, by the firm of Cooper and Holt—within less than sixty days previous to his (Mann's) insolvency, and in bringing this action, the plaintiffs relied upon the 8th section of the Insolvent Act, by which it was especially declared that all securities, alienations or payments, within this period, by which one creditor should be preferred to another, should be null and void.

After the case for the plaintiff had been closed,

Mr. Foster submitted to the Court, that the plaintiffs must be non-suited, as it had not been shown that the plaintiffs in the present suit were in the possession of the notes in question at the time of their conversion—the true possession of those notes was certainly vested in the insolvent, and not in his assignees, who were the plaintiffs in the present action; but even if the case were otherwise, and it was contended that by the operation of the Insolvent Act, the possession of all the insolvent's property was vested in his trustees, it would be clear that he was the only party who would be entitled to commence an action of trover like the present.

After some arguments, however, the Court decided against the objection, but consented to take a note of it, in order to its being subsequently brought before a full Court if necessary, and in making this decision, His Honor suggested to the Counsel for the plaintiff, the propriety of applying for leave to amend their declaration, by inserting a clause to the effect that the notes in question were vested in the present plaintiffs at the time of their conversion by the defendant, remarking, however, that if they choose to avail themselves of such suggestion, he would not himself grant them the necessary permission, but would reserve the matter for the consideration of the full Court. In accordance with this suggestion, the Counsel for the plaintiff made the application alluded to.

Mr. Foster then addressed the Jury for the defence, contending, that as the handing over of the notes in question by the insolvent to the defendant in this action had been entirely compulsory, in order to save his property from being sold under an execution emanating from that Court, and did not therefore come within the scope of the eighth section of the Insolvent Act, which clause was clearly meant to apply only to cases in which a voluntary preference had been given by the insolvent to any of his creditors to the injury of the remainder. In support of this view, the learned gentleman read the twelfth clause of the same Act, by which an exception was made in favour of all compulsory payments made in pursuance of a process of Court. He then called Brown, the Sheriff's bailiff, who deposed as to his having made a levy upon Mann's property, at the instance of Messrs. Cooper and Holt; but it appeared from the cross-examination of this witness' that the insolvent had been suffered to carry on his business, and some doubts arose as to whether the execution had been properly carried into effect.

The counsel for the defence, however, called Mr. Rogers, the defendant's attorney, who gave evidence as to the delivering up of the notes in order to get rid of the execution; and who also stated that Mr. Mann had been allowed to carry on his business in pursuance of a special permission from himself and the present defendant to that effect.

The Solicitor-General, in reply to the above defence, contended, that even although the two notes, bearing the endorsement of Messrs. Hughes and Hosking, might, on the supposition of the execution having been correctly enforced, have been given to the defendant as a compulsory payment in the manner contemplated by the 12th clause of the Insolvent Act; yet the two notes of Messrs. Gore and Co., having been given as mere collateral security for the payment of the others, (which composed the whole amount of the debt and costs), could not be regarded in the same point of view. He submitted, therefore, that whatever might be the opinion of the Jury with respect to the two former notes, the plaintiff would be entitled to a verdict to the amount of the two latter.

His Honor, in summing up, stated to the Jury that there were three points in the case to which they would have to direct their attention; first, whether the insolvent was, at the time of delivering such bills, in a position to do so; secondly, whether the delivery of such bills to the defendant had been a voluntary delivery, or had been made under the pressure of the execution, (in order to determine which point, they would have first to determine whether the Sheriff was or was not in possession of the insolvent's property at the time when the bills were delivered); and, thirdly, whether all the four bills were given in satisfaction of the judgment,—or, whether two only were so given, and the remaining two as collateral security. His own opinion upon this last point was, that the whole of the bills had been given to the defendant by Mr. Mann, and that the plaintiff should either receive the amount of the whole of these bills, or should not recover upon any of them; but it would be open to the Jury if they thought otherwise to give a verdict for the plaintiff to the amount of Messrs. Gore and Co.'s two bills. The main point of the question was, whether the bills were or were not given up under the pressure of the execution, and in order to prevent the sale of Mann's property, for it was clear to him (the Judge) that the 8th clause of the Insolvent Act was never meant to comprise alienations of property of this description, but merely such transfers or assignments of property as were made voluntarily by the insolvent, with the view of creating a preference in favour of one or more of their creditors.

The Jury, after a few minutes' consideration, returned a verdict for the defendant on all the issues.

Previous to the Jury being impanelled for the trial of the next cause, it was arranged (as the case was likely to be a long one, and a number of the jurors reside at Parramatta) that the Court should adjourn in time to allow them to return by the four o'clock boat, which is the latest hour at which the boats at present leave Sydney for that place.

CLARKE V. SILLITOE AND ANOTHER.

This was an action to recover damages for an alleged trespass.

Mr. Fisher opened the pleadings.

Mr. Windeyer followed on the same side, and gave an outline of the plaintiff's case. When he had closed his address, the Court adjourned till Saturday, at ten o'clock.

Saturday.

Before His Honor Mr. Justice Stephen, and a Special Jury.

BRENAN V. KEMP AND ANOTHER.

Mr. J. R. Brenan, the plaintiff in the above case, applied to the Court for its restoration to the cause list, with the view of its being disposed of during the present term. The case, he said, had been struck out of the list by his attorneys, Messrs. O'Reilly and Bradley, by the withdrawal of notice of trial, without he (Mr. Brenan) having given any previous instructions to that effect, or in any manner expressed his consent to such a course; and as he had brought an action for libel as well against him in his private capacity as in that of a public officer, he felt bound, in justice to himself, to use every exertion in order to bring on the trial as speedily as possible. In support of this action, Mr. Brenan produced an affidavit, made by himself, in which the above facts were affirmed.

His Honor enquired whether the defendants in the above case had received notice of the above application.

Mr. Brenan replied in the negative.

His Honor said that he could not of course be expected to make any order at the present moment, when the parties most concerned had had no notice of the application; but he thought that the objects of Mr. Brenan would be attained without any such order. In the first place, the apparent wish of that gentleman was to clear himself from the supposition of having been privy to the postponement of the trial, and he (the Judge) thought that this object would be fully attained by the publicity of the present application. As to the restoration of the cause, Mr. Brenan might, by an application to the Chief Clerk, obtain an order, returnable before the Judge sitting in Chambers on Monday morning next, calling upon the defendants to show cause why the case should not be restored to the paper.

Mr. Brenan said, that his principal object in coming into Court to make this application was to show that no diffidence or want of confidence on his part as to the result of the trial, had been the means of occasioning its postponement. In justice to Messrs. O'Reilly and Bradley he would add, that according to the communication of these gentlemen with him, their reason for withdrawing the notice of trial was, that he (Mr. Brenan) had not transmitted to them a sum of forty guineas for the purpose of feeing counsel in the case.

His Honor repeated his suggestion as to the course which Mr. Brenan would have to pursue, and that gentleman soon afterwards left the Court.

CLARKE V. TRUSTEES OF GORDON.

This was an action of trespass brought by Mr. Clarke, irongmonger, of George-street, against Messrs. C. Irving and Acton Sillitor, the trustees of the estate of R. C. Gordon, to recover damages for a forcible entry by these gentlemen upon the premises of the plaintiff, and the injury alleged to have been thereby occasioned to the plaintiff's business and credit.

Messrs. Windeyer and Foster appeared for the plaintiff, and called several witnesses, who proved that the defendants had taken forcible possession of the plaintiff's premises upon the 18th March last, and had retained such possession for ten days; at the end of which period it was again delivered up to the plaintiff. Evidence was also adduced to show that the business of Mr. Clarke was, previous to the time of his seizure, a flourishing and profitable one; but that since that period its profits had been materially diminished. In order to show the right of possession on the part of the plaintiff, an agreement, which had been entered into between himself and Mr. Gordon for the purchase of the stock and the lease of the premises, was proved in the usual manner.

Messrs. Foster and Broadhurst appeared for the defence, and the principal grounds of answer to the above case were, that sufficient reason existed to create a belief on the part of the defendants, that the property in question was only the plaintiff's colourably, and belonged in point of fact to Mr. Gordon, and that, as the trustees of his estate, it was their duty to secure it for the benefit of his creditors.

His Honor, in summing up, stated, that although in his opinion the defendants could not be supposed from the evidence adduced to have acted as they had done from any motives of malice, but merely with a view to the performance of their duty as trustees, they had nevertheless so far laid themselves open by the fact of their having taken the law in their own hands, that the forcible entry must be regarded as a trespass, whether it had been made with a malicious motive or not. In cases of this description, where the property in possession of one person was supposed to be bona fide that of another, the law provided a remedy; but the defendants, instead of having resort to this remedy, had taken the law in their own hands, and there could consequently be no question that in so doing they had committed a trespass. In determining the amount of damages, they would have to be guided by the amount of the profits which might be supposed to have accrued during the period when the defendants had possession of the plaintiff's premises, as well as such damages as he might be supposed to have sustained in reputation and commercial credit in consequence of the same transaction.

The Jury then retired, and after an absence of about an hour and-a-half, came in for the purpose of enquiring whether, in the consideration of damages, they were to estimate for the precise amount of money which might be supposed to have been received by the defendants during the time they had possession of the plaintiff's property.

His Honor stated, that they were bound to do so, and the Jury again retired for upwards of half-an-hour longer, when they returned a verdict in favour of the plaintiff. Damages, £400.

The Court then adjourned to Monday.

School of Arts.—Mr. S. P. Hill delivers the first of two Lectures on "The Study of Literature," this evening.

Theatre.—The present Manager of the Victoria deserves credit for the general excellence of the pieces produced during the last month. Some sterling comedies and tragedies have been brought out and given satisfaction; but there is a lack of strength in the company, which renders the situation of the leaders very onerous. In Venice Preserved for instance, the only well-played character was Mrs. Coppin's Belvidera—the whole weight of the piece was thrown on her shoulders; but notwithstanding this drawback the tragedy was a source of intellectual enjoyment to those who saw it (among whom were the Governor and Lady Gipps)—the language being elegant and impassioned, and the sentiment (excepting a little occasional rant) pure. The same remarks will apply, almost literally, to Milman's beautiful play of Fazio. We applaud the tact of the Manager in bringing out pieces of this description: for they are capable of yielding enjoyment, if the text of the authors is strictly attended to; and they tend to form a correct taste amongst playgoers, who comprise, be it remembered, no inconsiderable portion of the population. Along with these plays, properly so called, there have been some amusing farces, and an occasional burlesque. We are glad to perceive that the regular cut-and-thrust blue-fire melodramas are going out of fashion.

Pigeon Shooting.—The first pigeon match for the season comes off to-day, at Gannon's old shooting ground, South Head Road, for a pair of cups, formed of silver-mounted emu eggs, with the colonial arms embossed on them. Several private matches are to come off at the same time.

Communication with England.—Extract of a letter from Liverpool, dated 25th April.—"A Memorial, numerously signed, has gone forward from here, to the Postmaster General, pointing out to him the great uncertainty and irregularity of advices to and from Sydney, and that the growing importance of the colony renders it essentially necessary that the communication should be more certain and regular, and suggesting the putting on sailing packets to and from Sydney to Ceylon, so as to take and receive letters by the overland mail steamers running to and from Calcutta. This Memorial will be backed by others from London, and it will remain to be seen what Government will do. Wool.—There is more buoyancy in the market, as things appear a shade better in manufacturing districts. The Sarah Rickets sailed on the 13th April. The Hereford and the Mary Lloyd will not get away until the end of May."

The New Town Hall.—Errata.—In Saturday's Herald, in the resolutions of the Committee appointed to consult with the City Surveyor, in reference to this projected undertaking, for "to include the Corinthian, &c.—read exclude the Corinthian, Composite, and Gothic orders. Mr. Taylor was present when the principal resolutions were passed.

Great Sale of Dormer O'Reilly's, Esq., Estates.—Mr. Stubbs excuses himself in thus announcing, as it may seem prematurely, his evening sale at the Royal Hotel, on Wednesday next, by reason of the extensive and important consequences attending it to all classes of buyers. If properties of every description, suitable for all classes of the community, from the industrious mechanic to the wealthy capitalist, be thrown open to public competition to the value of some £30,000, it surely becomes a matter of interest with, and concerns every one to see whether some part or portion is not what has been sought for a long while. It is with this view so early an announcement has been thought both necessary and respectful to the public, that they may be prepared with the trifling deposits required of them upon any extent of purchase.—Communicated.

Sale of Property.—Mr. Stubbs calls the attention of all classes of buyers to the selections of lands and houses, he disposes of positively this day, by public auction, as per advertisement in the papers, of this day. The auction will commence with Mrs. Bergen's building property, in Kent street, at twelve; next, the twenty-seven acres, and premises, near Ireland's; after which, Mr. Stubbs will proceed to Abercrombie-place, to sell the house and land there, with the rental, at one o'clock.—Communicated.

Capture of two armed Bushrangers.—Intelligence has been received in Sydney that Sergeant Morrison of the Mounted Police has succeeded in capturing Polson and Bourman, the two men who effected their escape from Constable Gollachar of the Windsor Police, about the middle of last week, while under escort between Windsor and Parramatta, taking with them the pistol with which he was guarding them. It appears Morrison retook them on the day after they had escaped from Gollachar. The inhabitants of the district are highly pleased that the activity of the Mounted Police has freed them from the visits of these men, who are known to be reckless and determined scoundrels.

Petty Sessions.—On Saturday last, a Petty Sessions was held at the Police Office, when the following night licenses were granted: George Coppin, of The Clown, Pitt-street, a Theatre license; Alfred Toogood, of The Rainbow, Pitt-street, a Theatre license; Richard Hayes, of The Mayor, Pitt-street, a Theatre license; John Sims, of The Currency Lass, Pitt and Hunter streets, half-past ten o'clock; James Aylward, of The Scotch Thistle, George-street, eleven o'clock; Henry Smith, of The Dove Inn, Sussex and Erskine streets, ten o'clock; Martin Gill, of The Donnybrook Fair, York-street, eleven o'clock; William Bolton, of The Cottage of Content, Sussex-street, ten o'clock; James Gannon, of The Sportsman, Philip-street, half-past ten. Billiard-table licenses were also granted to the following applicants: George Coppin, of The Clown, Pitt-street; Alfred Toogood, of The Rainbow, Pitt-street; —— Wells, of The Lord Nelson, Kent and Argyle street.

Application for a Removal of License.—John Kellick, of the Australian Inn, Phillip-street, has applied for permission to remove his license to Prince-street, corner of Argyle-street.

Inquest.—An inquest was held on Friday, at Phillip's, Star in the East Tavern, George-street, on the body of Michael Phillips Newton, aged eight months, son of David Newton, who had been put to bed in his usual health on Thursday night, and about ten o'clock the same evening was found dead. Mr. Surgeon Jones having certified that death had been caused by convulsions, induced by teething, a verdict of died by the visitation of God was recorded.

ORIGINAL CORRESPONDENCE.

[Advertisement.]

Elizabeth-street, 26th August, 1842.

My Dear Sir,—Both on Mr. Foster's account and on my own, I think I have just reason to complain of the manner in which our late correspondence has been published by you in the Sydney Morning Herald of the 26th instant. If, while you were publishing our written correspondence, you had also stated the substance of what passed between us in conversation, when I called upon you on Friday evening, after the receipt of your letter, No. 5, (I refer to your advertisement), I should have cared little about the matter. But in suppressing that interview, you have altered most materially the whole complexion of the case. To relieve Mr Foster from the suspicion of having been intimidated into an explanation, and myself from the charge of having compromised his honour, I am reduced to the disagreeable necessity of reminding you, or rather of informing the readers of your advertisement, through a letter to you, of the material circumstances you have thought proper to omit.

I commenced our conversation with requesting you to be more explicit with regard to the offensive expressions alluded to in your letter, No. 5. In answer to this, you referred to, and reiterated your statement upon, that point contained in that letter. You also spoke of the impression Mr. Foster's behaviour had made upon your own mind. I objected to the vagueness of the charge, and to Mr. Foster's being called upon to answer a mere impression, or the surmise of an insult; and I expressed my opinion, that no man in Sydney, unacquainted personally with the merits of the case, would feel justified in advising Mr. Foster to notice so uncertain a charge as the one you preferred. I also observed, that in the present stage of the proceedings, it was our duty to reconcile differences if possible, and that the tone and spirit of your letters to me were not exactly calculated to produce such a result.

But the material part of our conversation was that in which I gave you most distinctly and emphatically to understand, that such a disavowal as you required in your letter No. 5., was one which, under all the circumstances, neither Mr. Windeyer, nor you for him, had any right to require. I argued, that the occasion did not call for Mr. Foster's being placed in such a position; that it was one in which one barrister should be most unwilling to see another, and would degrade our whole body. In answer to your remark, that the offence had been given publicly, I observed that persons of the highest consideration had before now considered a private apology quite a sufficient reparation for a public affront; and I dwelt particularly upon the fact, which you admitted might have been the case, of Mr. Foster's having received some degree of provocation from Mr. Windeyer. Indeed, you were the first to suggest that this might have been the case. After some further conversation, I gave it as my opinion, that if Mr. Foster should upon reflection think proper to explain that he had not intended any personal offence to Mr. Windeyer, that was as much as under all the circumstances he could be expected to do. And after using expressions which I intended as an intimation that I might perhaps recommend that course to Mr. Foster, I left you, promising to communicate with you again forthwith.

I immediately proceeded to Mr. Foster's house, but not finding him at home, I wrote you the note No. 6. About 8 o'clock, Mr. Foster called upon me, and after a little conversation with him, I wrote, and sent to you the note No. 8. Having done so, I went to the ball at Government House, in the perfect confidence that you neither could nor would do anything publicly in the matter, without giving me or Mr. Foster notice. Upon my return from Government House, at about one o'clock, I found your letter No. 9. Perfectly astonished at its language, I immediately made a rough draft of a note to you, of which I have since furnished you with a copy.

Almost the first thing I saw this morning was your advertisement; I immediately wrote to you a note, a copy of which, as nearly as my recollection enables me to give one, will be printed with this, and be published together with your advertisement. All of them together will I trust have the effect of setting Mr. Foster right with any readers of the Herald, who, not knowing him, might perchance misconstrue his conduct so far as it is disclosed in your advertisement.

They will perceive at once that the conclusion drawn by you in the last sentence of No. 9 is not warranted by the premises. But I may add in his further vindication, that in advising him to offer an explanation, I proceeded entirely upon my own personal knowledge of what had occurred in Court, and my own opinion of what was due both to Mr. Windeyer and himself as gentlemen and brother barristers.

I am, my dear Sir,
Yours, truly,
EDWARD BROADHURST.

T. J. Fisher, Esq.,
&c. &c.

26th August, 1843.

My dear Sir,—Upon returning from Government House early this morning, I found your note lying on my table; I immediately wrote you an answer, which I intended to submit, together with your last letter, to Mr. Foster, not thinking that you either would or could publish our correspondence. Nothing but the concluding paragraph of your last letter could have astonished me so much, as seeing your advertisement in this morning's Herald. A copy of that note I may by-and-bye send you; at present I have only time to protest against your last step, and to say, that I consider your conduct, in publishing the correspondence, quite unwarrantable.

I am, dear Sir,
Yours, truly,
EDWARD BROADHURST.

(No. 1.)

Chambers, King and Elizabeth streets, Friday, Four o'clock.

My dear Sir,—Having been informed by you, when I applied on behalf of Mr. Windeyer to you for a retractation of the offensive expressions used by you towards him in Court this afternoon, that you would retract nothing, and having been then referred by you to a friend, who declined to act in the matter; and having been then requested by you to write to you, I now beg you to refer me to some other gentleman, in case you are still averse to a retractation of those expressions, if applied personally to Mr. Windeyer, or an explanation of them if applied otherwise. I shall remain at Chambers till five, and afterwards be at my house.

Believe me, my dear Sir,

Dear Sir,—I refer you to Mr. Broadhurst in reply to your letter.

(No. 3.)

Chambers, Elizabeth-street, Friday.

My dear Broadhurst,—Mr. Foster, in answer to my written application to him for a retractation of certain offensive expressions used by him towards Mr. Windeyer in Court this afternoon, if applied personally to Mr. Windeyer, or an explanation of them if applied otherwise, has referred me again to you, stating that you would now act for him. Tell me when and where I can meet you, to make the arrangements which must at once be made.

Yours, faithfully,
THOMAS J. FISHER.

25th August, 1843.

My dear Fisher,—Before I can answer your note in a definite manner, you must allow me to ask what are the certain offensive expressions to which you allude. I shall be most happy to concur with you in any arrangement which may have the effect of adjusting the differences between our mutual friends, without compromising their characters or our own.

Yours, faithfully,
E. BROADHURST.

(No. 5.)

Elizabeth-street South, Friday.

My dear Broadhurst,—As your letter seeks for informattion, I afford what is required; but unless your answer be satisfactory to me, I shall feel justified by the tenor of your observations in applying again to Mr. Foster. Mr. Foster used the expression "it is false" more than once to Mr. Windeyer, and according to my recollection he dared Mr. Windeyer to say that he (Mr. Windeyer) had not made use of certain remarks relating to the plaintiff's case, which Mr. Foster attributed to him. To cut short this correspondence, Mr. Foster's expressions and manner were such that Mr. Windeyer's honour requires that Mr. Foster should either disavow openly in Court that in anything he said he meant to cast any imputation whatever on Mr. Windeyer as a gentleman and man of honour, or to apply any charge of falsehood to him personally, or otherwise than in his character of counsel, or give Mr. Windeyer the satisfaction of a gentleman.

Yours, faithfully,
THOMAS J. FISHER.

P.S. I shall remain at home for a reply.

(No. 6.)

My dear Fisher,—I have failed in seeing Mr. Foster; he has been at the Council Chamber since he left Court.

Yours, faithfully,
E. BROADHURST.

(No. 7.)

My dear Broadhurst,—Unless I hear from you before ten o'clock to-night, I shall have no other alternative but that of apply to Mr. Foster again, as I intimated in my letter.

Yours, faithfully,
THOMAS J. FISHER.

E. Broadhurst, Esq.

(No. 8.)

My Dear Fisher,—I have just had a communication with Mr. Foster, and hasten to inform you of the result.

Your complaint on behalf of Mr. Windeyer is, that "Mr. Foster used the expression 'it is false' more than once; and, according to your recollection, dared Mr. W. to say that he had not made use of some remarks relating to the plaintiff's case which Mr. F. attributed to him."

Mr. Foster does not wish to make any captious objection to the vagueness of this charge; but he authorises me to say, that if in the heat of the moment he used any expressions appearing to impute falsehood to Mr. W. personally, he did not intend to do so, and that his only object was to resist what appeared to him an attack upon himself by Mr. Windeyer.

This he may have done in stronger terms than the occasion required; but the supposed charge of falsity was directed solely to what Mr. Foster considered imputations upon himself. Let me hope that this explanation will be, as I think it ought to be, satisfactory both to our friend Mr. Windeyer and yourself.

Yours, faithfully,
EDWARD BROADHURST.

August 25, 1843.

(No. 9.)

My dear Broadhurst,—Under the circumstances, I conceive the explanation of Mr. Foster, as stated in your last letter, satisfactory. As Mr. Foster has taken the second alternative offered in my letter, our correspondence must of course be published.

Yours, faithfully,
THOMAS J. FISHER.

E. Broadhurst, Esq.

Elizabeth-street.

My dear Sir,—If I had published the correspondence without first apprising you of my intention so to do, the publication could not have been justified; but very shortly after I had received your reply with Mr. Foster's explanation, my letter to you, informing you that it must of course be published, was left at your house. The title of "advertisement" was not prefixed by me or with my knowledge to the correspondence.

At the conversation to which you refer I did not admit that we had merely to reconcile a difference; I observed that I was acting for Mr. Windeyer, the aggrieved party, and I never conceded (which you do not indeed allege I did) that the explanation need not be public.

I conceived that Mr. Windeyer's position was a most painful one, and that it was my duty, after he had put himself into my hands to relieve him from it. The language and manner of which, if intended to be personal, he then complained had been adopted in a crowded Court before a Special Jury, in a case which was adjourned, and in which Mr. Windeyer must therefore appear against at ten o'clock the next morning. The explanation, therefore, I thought must be immediate and public. This will account both for the pressing tone of my communications, and for the publication of the correspondence after Mr. Foster had taken the alternative offered by me in my letter to him.

That either you or Mr. Foster should have felt subjected to any suspicion or charge, neither of which is justifiable, I very much regret, and if I were conscious of having been to blame, no one would have been more pained, or sooner apologized than myself.

I remain, yours, truly,
THOMAS J. FISHER.

PROSPECTUS OF ARDEN'S SYDNEY MAGAZINE.

THIS Publication, as at present projected, will be a Monthly one, its cost 3s. 6d. per Number, or £2 2s. per annum; and in its contents will be combined Colonial Politics with General Literature. Each number will contain 100 octavo pages of closely printed matter, and the first Number will be issued on the commencement of the ensuing month.

The Proprietor has little to say regarding the particular views and opinions which may be advocated in the papers of ARDEN'S SYDNEY MAGAZINE as he considers an editorial exposition of doctrines is not required in such a case as this, connected with which, he now seeks for public patronage. He has simply to state, therefore, that the chief subjects will be embraced under the following heads:

1. A leading Paper on some broad political question of general colonial import.
2. Original Essays, papers, and communications, on subjects of a general literary and scientific nature, or those more immediately connected with colonial interests and resources.
3. Original Fiction.
4. Original Poetry.
5. Colonial History, comprising a series of papers, the whole of which will form an historical memoir of each of the Australasian Colonies, by the most talented and experienced writers in the country.
6. Colonial Biography and Obituary. These papers are intended to be on the plan which has made some of the leading British Magazines so eminently popular, and will contain biographical sketches of Government Officers of State, Members of the Legislative Council, leading Politicians, and Colonial Authors of repute.
7. Notices of British Literature, particularly Novels and Periodicals.
8. Reviews of Colonial Literature.
9. Précis of latest intelligence from Home, the Colonies, and Foreign States.
10. Monthly Colonial Chronicle.
11. Fiscal, Commercial, and Maritime Statistics.
12. Births, Marriages, and Deaths.

As it will be difficult for the Proprietor to conduct his intended Magazine on the injurious credit system which lately has so much prevailed, he is obliged to announce that each copy must be paid for on delivery. At the same time the Proprietor, under such an arrangement does not expect to receive promises of subscription for any period beyond a month.

This Magazine will be published and printed at THE AUSTRALIAN (Newspaper Office), and will be conducted by Mr. George Arden, late Editor and Proprietor of THE PORT PHILLIP GAZETTE, author of the History of Port Phillip, Essays, Tales, &c.

ARDEN'S SYDNEY MAGAZINE will be illustrated by Mr. J. S. Prout, Member of the New Society of Water Colours, London, and Instructor of the Art in Sydney. The sketches, of which there are to be a continued series, will be drawn and lithographed by Mr. Prout himself.

 Advertisers are informed that the terms of subscription are 1s. per page, 6s. for half a page, and 3s. for any space occupied under that measure.

☞ Subscription lists lie at THE AUSTRALIAN Printing Office, the Commercial Reading Rooms, Mr. Morris, Publisher, THE WEEKLY REGISTER Office, the Royal Bank of Australia, Mr. Tegg's, the publisher, the Australian Subscription Library, and other public places.

N. B.—All orders for advertisements, and communications for the Editor, are requested to be sent in to THE AUSTRALIAN Printing Office, on or before the 31st of the present month.

DISTRICT COUNCILS.

PETITIONS FROM PENRITH TO DELAY THEIR INSTITUTION

To His Excellency Sir GEORGE GIPPS, Knt., Governor of New South Wales.

The respectful petition of the undersigned Landholders, and holders of property, in the district of Penrith and county of Cumberland,

SHEWETH,

THAT your petitioners have heard, with much regret and alarm, that your Excellency intends, notwithstanding the present depressed state of the landholders and other settlers of the colony, to incorporate the inhabitants of districts, and to appoint District Councils for the local government thereof, in order to raise one-half of the police expenses of each district by direct taxation.

That this is peculiarly a grain growing district, and the land on the alluvial banks of the Nepean River, South Creek, Rope's, and Eastern Creek, are for the most part occupied by settlers holding, either in demesne or as tenants, farms from thirty to two hundred acres of arable land.

That the occupiers of these farms have had to contend in past years with severe losses from drought, the sudden withdrawal of convict labour, the consequent high price of free labour, and more recently with the absence of a market for their produce from the unchecked importation of foreign grain, until they are in a state bordering on destitution.

That while your petitioners would approve of their being incorporated for the purposes of raising, managing, and controlling their local expenditure, and are ready to co-operate with your Excellency's Government in so doing, they must submit to your Excellency that the half of the police expenses, required by the Act of Parliament to be raised by each district, will press unfairly on them, its amount being necessarily larger, owing to Penrith being on the great thoroughfare to the country beyond the mountains, and the police frequently employed on the duty of escorting prisoners of the Crown, and pursuing runaway convicts, and not on the local police of the district.

That the taxation required to raise such sum is unconstitutional, as not being imposed by their representatives; unnecessary, as the whole police is already paid for by the colony; unjust, inasmuch as the colonists have expended upwards of a million of money in relieving the parent state of a proportionate number of emigrants, and have also for many years maintained in private service about twenty thousand convicts, without expense to such state, and moreover as the large expenditure is occasioned by presence of convicts sent from England, still indirectly forced on them from Norfolk Island and Van Diemen's Land; and oppressive, beyond your petitioners' power at present to defray.

Your petitioners therefore pray your Excellency will be pleased to defer the incorporation of the inhabitants of this district during the present ruinous state of the monetary interests of the colony, and until the Honorable the Legislative Council have had the state and requirements of the districts enquired into, and have taken such steps as to them may seem fit, to induce the Imperial Parliament to modify the said Act, so as to render it more applicable to the wants and wishes of the people.

And your petitioners, &c.

(No. 2).

To the Honorable the Members of the Legislative Council of New South Wales, in Council assembled.

The respectful Petition of the undersigned Magistrates, Landholders, and holders of property in the district of Penrith,

SHEWETH,

THAT by the Act of the British Parliament, 5 and 6 Victoria, cap. 76, entitled an Act for the Government of New South Wales and Van Diemen's Land, it is enacted, that it shall be lawful for the Governor of the said colony, by letters patent, to incorporate the inhabitants of the counties thereof, and to form districts for purposes therein recited, and to establish Councils for the local government thereof, subject to certain provisoes therein contained.

That by the 47th clause of the said Act, it is enacted that one half of the police establishment of the colony (exclusive of the convict establishment) shall be defrayed out of the general revenue, arising from taxes, duties, rates, and imposts, within the said colony, and the other shall be defrayed by assessments upon the several districts in such proportions as shall be fixed by the Governor and the Legislative Council, to be paid by the Treasurer, on warrants from the Governor.

That by the 48th clause, the assessments for that purpose are to be levied by the District Councils by a local rate.

That by the 49th clause, it is enacted that if the amount ordered by such warrant of the Governor be not paid by the Treasurer within two calendar months after the receipt of the warrant, it shall be lawful for the public Treasurer of the colony, or other proper officer appointed by the Governor for that purpose, to levy the amount by sale of the goods of the Treasurer, and of all or any of the members of the said District Council, and if no sufficient distress can be thereby made, then by the sale of the goods of any of the inhabitants of the said district.

That District Councillors are called on to serve under a penalty of fifty pounds for refusing.

That the enactments of the above recited 49th clause appear to your petitioners to be of such an arbitrary nature as to render the formation of the District Councils odious and distasteful to the people, who have no control on the amount or application of the funds to be raised in pursuance of it; and as the Act does not require the District Councillors to possess any property within their districts, and they are in the first instance to be nominated by the Governor, the operation of this clause places the fortune of every inhabitant of a district in the power of an irresponsible authority.

That in the present depressed state of the Colony, the attempt to raise so large an addition to the revenue by direct taxation, by other than the chosen representatives of the people, is viewed by your petitioners with feelings better conceived than expressed; and your petitioners are assured that if the half of the police expenses be thus extracted, the other and legitimate objects of District Incorporation cannot be carried out, from the utter inability of the people to raise the funds they will require.

Your petitioners therefore request your honorable house will take such clause into your consideration, and in exercise of the powers conferred on your honourable house, by the 45th clause of the said Act of the Imperial Parliament, make such provisions respecting the constitution and powers of such District Councils, as the present state of the Colony may appear to your honorable house to require. And also take such steps as to your honorable house may seem fit to induce the Imperial Parliament to render the Act more consonant to the constitutional principles of British subjects, and adapted to the wants and interests of this Colony.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray, &c.

(Signed by the same parties.) 2911

"THE GREAT POLITICAL ERA!"

SEE SYDNEY HERALD.

PROPERTY SECURED AND CONFIDENCE RESTORED

IN NEW SOUTH WALES!

BY HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR, Who has promised his cheerful and cordial cooperation in every matter connected with the best interests and welfare of the Colony, and who has also assured the colonists that it was "a matter of great satisfaction to him, and would ever form a most pleasurable recollection during his life, that it had fallen to his lot to have had the DISTINGUISHED HONOUR of introducing into the colony those institutions of self-government which formed the boast and safeguard of the race from which they had sprung; and he confidently hoped that those institutions would be found to answer all the purposes which were expected from them."

To Capitalists, Storekeepers, Tradesmen, Mechanics, Dealers, and all Persons having Money under trust, or otherwise to invest for the benefit of others, &c.

NOTE.—If the past depressed state of the Land and Stock Market be any proof of the worst state of things, even so the re-action of their being better, is as sure a reason, under the blessings of the New Era of our political existence as a colony, as that a giant regains his strength after being refreshed from fatigue.

Most Important and very extensive Sale of Town, Suburban, Villa, and Country Properties,

BY MR. STUBBS,

To come off in the Saloon of the Royal Hotel, on WEDNESDAY EVENING, the 30th instant, at half-past six for seven o'clock precisely, p. m., where refreshments will be provided for the company.

MR. STUBBS has been honoured with instructions from Edward Dormer O'Reilly, Esq., Solicitor, to arrange the Sale, and bring unreservedly to the hammer on the evening above named, a most valuable portion of that gentleman's landed possessions, available for the erection of Private Residences, Shops, and Stores, throughout the colony, or for Manufactories, or other purposes which the unanimous domestic industry of the colonists will shortly require, having been selected and portioned as occasion served on account of their situation for these purposes.

☞ Terms of Credit.—One half of the purchase money may remain secured upon the properties; for the residue, ten per cent. cash deposit; twenty per cent. at three months; and twenty per cent. at six months, without interest.

Such an opportunity as the present must of course put an end for a short period to the system of renting, as no person would think of taking leases whilst they can purchase at a cheap rate, i. e., without reserve, and upon their own securities.

The following will be the order of the Auction, viz.:—

Lot 1—All that beautiful estate, comprising twenty acres, with two-story house, situate at the entrance of the Lane Cove River, formerly the property of Mr. Onions, and now let to the highly respected family of the late Dr. M'Lean, at £75 per annum.

17—Two allotments at Kiama
18—Seven ditto at Wollongong
19—One ditto at Maitland
20—Two ditto at Gunning
21—Fourteen and half acres at Violet Creek
22—Two allotments at Albury
23—Thirty acres at Port Aiken.

Full particulars in a future advertisement.

Mr. Stubbs would respectfully solicit the attention of the public to the consequences of this sale. Mr. Stubbs would respectfully observe that a country, such as New South Wales, boundless in extent, unequalled in climate, unparalleled in energy, untried in resources, redundant in property, countless flocks and cattle, "on a thousand hills," cannot remain long without attracting the attention, and exciting the envy of the moneyed men in the mother country, getting, as they do, only 3 per cent. (less the property tax of 7d. in the pound) for their money. All they want to see is confidence restored here amongst ourselves: mutual good faith and honest dealing one with another.—Then will pour in again upon us population, and what is of greater importance, the purse strings of the influential families in England and Europe, will be unloosed again.

Nil desperandum.

The Colony must go ahead. 1297

THESE "PET FARMS"

are too well known to require any artificial description. Little is required else at the hands of the auctioneer than exhibiting them as per plan at the hour of sale to create and ensure a competition, such as is only known in the sale of a popular property like these farms, in a splendid district.

THE SITUATION

is quit proximate to the Church by a pleasant rural drive, and the LOCALITY is peculiarly distinguished as being a neighbourhood of the first character and respectability, and has not been inaptly compared to some of the choicest spots which the landscape painter has selected for admiration and fame. 2928

TO TRAVEL.--SCRATCH.

THIS thorough-bred horse (formerly the property of Mr. J. Brown,) will travel between Muswellbrook, Scone, and Merton, and will also stand at Mr. Richard Ward's, proprietor, Muswellbrook.

He is a beautiful bay, with black points, and strong muscular power; but his performance on the turf is so well known, that further commendation is quite unnecessary.

Terms:—For a single mare, £3; two or more, £2 10s. each.

Good paddocks will be provided for mares, every attention paid them, but no risk incurred.

N. B.—Payments to be made before the removal of mares. 2867

There can be no doubt about this end of the town being, in the building-sense of the word, the very "ground-rent of Fortune." It is enviously populous; certainly more reasonable to live in, and most desirable for convenience of distance and business than any other part, by far.

A TWO-STORY BRICK HOUSE,

As this is, with a detached kitchen, is now let at the low rent of 20s. per week, (not half its value) and yet pays well! and no wonder at it, for if you build fifty a week, they'd all let in a day!

Title unexceptionable, and terms made known at sale.

This sale is absolutely and positively for the benefit of the family.
